Identifying the tone or mood in a text is often an important clue to help the reader. Tone and mood can -- and usually do -- overlap; the words that evoke tone and mood. Identifying the tone or mood in a text is often an important clue to help the reader. Poets try to create an overall feeling by introducing mood to their poems. Some poems are even written in the shape of the thing they are written about. For example, if the poem is about an apple, the words in the poem are arranged to create a feeling that evokes the shape of an apple. Feeling words have to do with the tone and mood of a piece of literature. Next identifying the tone or mood...
